

Five Convicts Flee Indiana Pen; Three Recaptured Today

Break, Apparently Long Planned, Follows Inspection

BARS SAWED IN EACH OF 5 CELLS

Three Taken by State Police, Surrender Without Resistance

(By Associated Press)
MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Feb. 11.— State police today captured the third of five convicts who escaped last night from the Indiana state prison. He was George Christian, 34, who was recaptured earlier in the day near Wheatfield, about 35 miles southwest of Michigan City.

Christian was returned immediately to the prison here. Officers said Christian had been with August Cummings, 37, and Frank Pardench, 24, who were recaptured earlier in the day near Wheatfield, about 35 miles southwest of Michigan City.

Search was continued in a driving rain for Theodore Hulbert, 26, and Angelo Genko, 29, who were believed to be somewhere in the Kansas marshlands south of Michigan City.

The escape was the first serious break from the Indiana prison since September, 1933, when ten convicts broke out of the prison and fled to form the notorious John Dillinger gang.

At least one of the trio which escaped last night, believed to have been Genko, was reported seen several times. The town marshal at Hickory, a few miles northwest of Wheatfield, said a car sped through that place and he believed the driver was Genko.

Cummings and Hulbert were serving sentences of 15 and 12 years respectively from Marion county for robbery and the other three were under sentences of 10 to 25 years from Lake county for the same crime. All had previous criminal records.

Break Long Planned
The break, apparently planned in advance, came after the 13th inspection last night. The five prisoners, occupying separate cells, sawed through the bars of each of their cells. From the corridor, they climbed to the top of the cell house, and through a tin roof and then climbed to the top of the nearby prison administration building.

Using a rope made from mattress covers, they lowered themselves 35 feet to the ground. A guard was stationed only 25 feet away.

They encountered a N. G. O. trusty at the prison gate and seized him, but he wriggled free of his prison uniform coat and fled.

He turned in the alarm but the three convicts had stolen two automobiles and fled.

VINSON URGES FLEET TO CARE FOR TWO COASTS

Naval Committee Leader
Proposes Amendment
To Bill

"SUFFICIENT FOR SECURITY," PLAN

Hagood Says Defense Is Being Made Political Football

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) told the house naval committee today he would try to amend the pending $800,000-600 naval expansion bill so as to authorize a fleet big enough to protect the Atlantic and Pacific coasts at the same time.

Vinson made public the text of an amendment he had prepared which would declare it to be "the fundamental naval policy" of this country to maintain a fleet adequate to defend both coasts and all insular possessions. It also would provide that the navy should be "sufficient in strength to guarantee our national security, but not for aggression."

Says Fleet Inadequate
The proposal, which evoked both criticism and approval in the committee, went into a record replete with testimony by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operation, that the fleet now is inadequate to defend the Pacific and Atlantic coasts from simultaneous attacks.

Vinson made known his plans during interrogation of Major General Johnson Hagood, retired army officer, who told the committee this country's national defense and security "is being made the football of politics" because congress had neglected its duties to make the rules and regulations for the land and naval forces.

Vinson's amendment defined adequate naval defense as "not only the protection of our continental coast line, the Canal Zone, Alaska, Hawaii and our insular possessions, but also a defense that will keep any potential enemy away from our shores."

BURGLARS RAID WEIKART STORE

Washingtonville Grocery Looted; Loss Is Undetermined

WASHINGTONVILLE, Feb. 11.—
The J. C. Weikart & Son grocery store here was broken into sometime Thursday night and a large quantity of groceries stolen.

The burglars gained entrance to the store by ripping off the weatherboarding on a rear room.
A stove poker, believed to have been used by the intruders, was found.

No estimate of the loss was placed because the Weikarts today were still trying to determine the exact loss. The burglars are believed by the sheriff's office to have used an automobile to haul away the groceries.

The safe was rifled but the money in it had been removed previously. A few pennies in a change box were taken.

Son of High Court
Judge Fatally Hurt

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 11.— Kevin Butler, 33-year-old building firm executive and son of Justice Pierce Butler of the supreme court of the United States, died early today, less than 24 hours after he was injured in a fall from a speeding train.

Physicians said the member of the firm of Kevin Butler and Brothers had died of shock and severe injuries, including a skull fracture.

Butler was found beside the Pennsylvania railroad tracks near here yesterday morning after the train on which he was a passenger had rounded a sharp curve.

He was returning to his home in St. Paul, Minn., business trip. The contractor, who weighed more than 200 pounds—had gone to the washroom. Trainmen expressed the opinion he may have been jolted against the window through which he fell.

Davey Secretary Called Ohio's Democratic Empress

Credited With "Cracking the Whip"; But She Says
"No, I'm Just a Secretary"

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 11.—Who is this empress of the Democratic party in Ohio, credited by popular fancy with cracking the whip over county political chairmen and dictating to state department heads?
Who is Myrna Smith?

She is a small attractive brunet with dimples, a vivacious personality and a smile as right as the dresses she wears.

Has Husband and Son
In private life she is Mrs. Barton H. Smith, with a husband and a 7-year old son, James Albert, and she is devoted to both.

As personal secretary to Gov.
Martin L. Davey, her first and only employer, she works 20 hours a day and often into the evening.

A political ezarina? Mrs. Smith ridicules the idea.
"I'm just the governor's secretary with a lot of things to do," she said today.

No. 1 adviser to the governor?
"No," she said. "I'm just one of many advisers. Governor Davey relies on no one person for advice.
He'll listen to almost anybody and then make up his mind himself."

Mrs. Smith handles all important correspondence of the chief executive. She confers with departmental heads and passes their opinions on to the governor, then frequently relays his decision back.
She relays, too, the requests of the politicians and job-seekers.

As head buffer between the governor and the public, Mrs. Smith talks personally with an average of 50 persons a day. In between, she estimates she talks on the telephone with two persons every five minutes.

The governor's opinion of his secretary's value was indicated some time ago when he increased her salary from $5,000 a year to $6,500, equal to that of a cabinet officer.

Myrna Susanna Young was 16 years old when she became one of three high school graduates chosen annually to go to work for the Davey Tree Expert company in Kent. She is now 35.

When Davey took office as governor in January, 1935, he brought in Mrs. Smith as his personal secretary.

She admits she urges appointment of women to every vacancy which she feels it would be proper for a woman to hold.

Mrs. Smith's principal pleasure, she says, is meeting and talking with people. Her hobbies are reading and fishing.

Holding Companies
Is Kiwanis Topic

William L. Hart, cashier of the Farmers National bank, gave an interesting description of holding companies in an address at the noon luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club yesterday at the Memorial building.

He was presented by Ray D.
Anderson.

Both the evils and advantages of holding companies, much in the spotlight recently by reason of their discussion by White House and legislative figures, were outlined by Hart.

Those holding companies justify their existence, Hart said, which, by reason of their financial ability, make improvements in equipment and service possible which small, individual operating companies could not.

NEW ROUMANIAN PREMIER NAMED AS GOGA QUILTS

Carol forms New Government With Dictatorial Powers

MIRON CRISTEA,
CHURCHMAN, CHIEF

Civil Administration Is Placed Under Military Control

(By Associated Press)
BUCHAREST, Roumania, Feb. 11.— A new government with dictatorial powers governed Roumania today, commissioned by King Carol to restore confidence shaken by the six-week administration of the anti-Semitic Premier Octavian Goga.

Dr. Miron Cristea, 68, patriarch of the Roumanian Orthodox church, is the new premier. He will rule without a parliament by decree until a new constitution is promulgated.

Four New Decrees
He acted quickly upon taking the oath of fealty to the king with four sweeping decrees which:

1. Named military garrison com-mandants of large cities as prefects of their districts.
2. Made nation-wide a "state of siege" by which persons charged with serious crimes may be tried before military court.
3. Postponed indefinitely March chamber and senate elections.
4. Ordered higher officials of villages to call assemblies for the naming of mayors and two assistants to each mayor.

Under Military Control
The decree naming military com-mandants as prefects placed the nation's civil administration under military control.

The hand of the king was evident in every move of the new government, which Carol formed by cutting across lines of political parties after the collapse of Goga's regime yesterday.

It was emphasized at the palace, however, that the monarch intended to return to constitutional forms of government later.

PROBE REPORT OF $23 HOLDUP

Police Seek Pair Who Robbed Leetonia Woman Here

Police last night investigated a report by Miss Ruth Calladine of 473 Summit st., Leetonia, that two unarmed men robbed her of $23 as she walked along N. Ellsworth ave., at Seventh st.

The holdup men, she told Patrolmen James Hassey and George Reash, accosted her at 9:40 p. m. as she was returning to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dudney, W. Seventh st., where she is visiting. She had been downtown on an errand.

The robbers, both described as young, demanded her pocketbook and when she told them she had some valuable papers in it which she would like to keep, they removed the $23 and handed back the pocketbook, the police report states.

Miss Calladine told Patrolmen Hassey both men wore caps and no topcoats.

Wright Case to Go To Jurors Tonight

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—Paul A. Wright, denounced by the prosecution as a "moral leper" and pictured by the defense as a "puppet of the fates," may know tonight whether he is to be punished or set free for slaying his wife, Evelyn, and his friend, John Kimmel.

Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull said he would instruct the jury of eight men and four women immediately after the prosecution presents its final argument, expected to end about 6:30 p. m. EST.

Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler, taking five and one-half hours to argue his case, sought justification for Wright's confessed killings in Biblical quotations; the code of an ancient king of Babylon, Hamurabi, and the laws of California.

Although Giesler quoted age-old sayings that an adulterer and an adulteress should be put to death, he based the greater part of his argument on the laws of the state.

Hear $20,000 Suit

LISBON, Feb. 11.—A jury in com-

The plaintiff's case is based on an accident occurring Dec. 22, 1935, on Main st., Wellsville in which the plaintiff says she broke her right ankle and sustained other injuries when she stumbled over a stone step on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Spooner says she spent ten days in a hospital and lists her medical expenses at $200.

DEFERS ACTION
ON 2 MEASURES

Assembly Still Has Relief And Appropriations to Take Care Of

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 11.—The Ohio assembly put aside its legislative cares today, having postponed until its Feb. 28 sine die adjournment date consideration of two highly controversial measures.

Still pending were a relief administration measure and an appropriations bill—not to mention scores of minor measures.

Leaders expected to clear up the jam in a final burst by continuing several days beyond the adjournment date through that legislative expedient of stopping the clocks and holding the calendars open.

Relief Called Inadequate Called into special session last Nov. 29, the legislature has taken care of only relief funds, appropriating about $12,000,000, but most officials agreed the sum was insufficient.

With the exception of providing additional funds for certain educational institutions, special appropriations measures still await action. Appropriations of about $3-000,000 for various departments have house approval but the measures remain before the senate finance committee which has whittled them to about $1,000,000.

One of the concrete actions of the house yesterday was reenactment of the Whittemore act under which persons owing delinquent taxes can pay their obligations on the installment plan. The bill now awaits senate action.

The house also appropriated $400,000 for pay increases to minor employees in welfare institutions and approved a bill to increase the pay and shorten the hours of all employees in state schools and hospitals.

Awaits House Action Still awaiting house action was the controversial Ogden measure which would transfer the state sales

Mahoning's Seidner So

Subject

INDICATES HORN
MAY BE RECALLED

Rumor Democratic Contributions Will Be Investigated

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 11.—The senate graft-hunting committee, given the blessing of common pleas court and a prospect of more funds, turned its attention today to "some pretty hot stuff."

While so describing the latest subject of inquiry, Chairman J.
Ralph Seidner (D-Mahoning) declined to identify it other than to say it was "along new lines."

From another source, however, came a report that the committee would delve into contributions made to the Democratic state committee by persons doing business with the state.

May Recall Horn

Seidner remarked that it was "quite possible" the investigators later would call back State Purchasing Agent Glenn A. Horn, who purged himself of a contempt charge yesterday by answering five disputed questions on orders of the court.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, who also instructed Horn to answer the questions, told newspaper men he would ask the state emergency board to give the investigating committee what funds it needed.

The senate voted several weeks ago to appropriate $40,000 for the investigation, but the house of representatives failed to give its approval to the bill.

The governor Davey said that "since the alleged investigation is underway, I would like for it to go the limit."

The governor said he would not remove Horn "under any circumstances unless he was guilty of wrongdoing" and "the fact that advantage was taken of him doesn't reflect on his integrity."

Earlier, Representative Gus Kasch (D-Summit) introduced resolutions in the house asking the governor to remove Horn and Joseph R. Malden

SUPERBATTLESHIP SOLUTION

Perhaps a word of kidding about the superbattle-ship problem which has arisen in connection with Japan's naval plans may be permitted in view of landlubber ignorance as to what a superbattleship is.
The landlubber supposes all battleships are in the super class; they cost enough. He remembers, also, that the last superbattleship scare was when Germany turned out a small battleship capable of doing everything the big ships could do. That adds to the confusion.

For it seems—to the landlubber—that the ne plus ultra in battleships is a boat so heavy and so formidable that no other boat dares to attack it. At least, the whole object in naval plans is to build such stout boats and so many of them there won't be any occasion to use them, because the enemy wouldn't dare to launch an attack.

Therefore, a superbattleship must be something like Goliath in the Bible story—something too big to be tackled, unless a David comes along and pots it—zing!—on a soft spot, in which case it turns out that the super stuff was just a big bluff.

The simplest and certainly the cheapest solution to the superbattleship problem is to call them all superbattleships. Then, by the costless method of adding supers, the naval race will go merrily on and no one will get hurt because everybody will be too impressed to start anything.

NOT THE BARREL, NOR THE TILL

A policy is a line of action. The national line of action on relief is to furnish money when it's needed.
Somewhat strangely, that describes national policy on money—something to be furnished when needed.

No American is going to starve for want of food or money. The two lines of action can't be dissociated.
They blend into each other closely as the government prepares to ask congress for another deficiency appropriation to continue relief policy till the end of next June.

The deficit for the year will be increased by the amount of the appropriation. The government cannot "scrape the barrel," as President Roosevelt likes to say, nor can it take the money from the till. It must create new money; it has been creating new money since the beginning of the decade by adding to its debt and spending on its credit.

This is the modern method of inflation, brought into play as a recovery measure and kept in play by inflationary necessity.

SHORT—TO THE POINT

"This bill," said Rep. Dewey Short of Missouri, speaking of the latest crop control-subsidy-soil preservation proposal, "is going to do more to destroy the Democratic party and bring back the Republicans than anything else. That's the only comforting thing in this whole sad mess."

More cruel words the Democrats never heard from the lips of a member of the opposition. Political parties always have fought for the privilege of saving farmers, not to learn the farmers didn't want to be saved their particular way. It's one of the natural laws of the country that agrarian voters sooner or later bite the hand pretending to feed them.

The explanation is simple enough. Farmers want a break, but they don't want to give up anything to get it. That isn't the way of politicians, but they never tire of believing that this time they're going to slip the vote halter on their agricultural friends at last.

Add guys who never grow old: James Montgomery Flagg. Eddy Duchin's arms reach nearly to his knees.
For goodness sake. No wonder he can whang the go-gollies out of a piano. Alfred Cheyney Johnson who became famous photographing the Ziegfeld beauts.

For chroniclers of giddap: Steven Hannagan spent 45 minutes between planes in Porto Rico the other day. Sherman Billingsley, the night club fellow suggests the spruce floor-walker in the old musical comedy. The don't-care-a-hang life of the party: Countessdi Frasso.

Chicago's No. 1 man-about-town: Dick Griner. Not since Vernon Castle was around, has there been a longer-legged fellow than N. T. G. Celebrities who cock their heads on one side: Verne Porter, Brook Pemberton, George M. Cohan, Major Bowes and Walter Damrosch.

Morris Gest still endures as a Rialto character.
And is the same as I saw him first with the floppy, fuzzy hat, flowing black tie and the sad-eyed expression of despair. He is, in the old time sense, a superb showman, one of the types to dramatize himself. Just as did his father-in-law, David Belasco, Ziegfeld, Charles Frohman and Oscar Hammerstein. Morris could—indeed he did at the old Century—cry in the lobby for critics just before curtain time, and he could go prolooting around Europe and dig up Balieff's Chauve Souris from a Moscow cellar. Few know the theatre so well.

When the Hotel Gotham was opened many years ago, the Ohio political boss, Mark Hanna, was one of the backers and made it his New York home. A special kitchen was built into his apartment so that his cook from Cleveland could come on and prepare Hanna's favorite Sunday morning breakfast, cornedbeef hash. The kitchen is still there. Someone tells me that in the days of better digestion, a favorite dish of the elder Rockefeller was hash.

Incidentally, the town house of the junior John D.
Rockefeller is soon to come down in West 54th street.
It will become a sort of a terraced garden approach for the entrance to the Museum of Modern Art to be built on West 53rd street. Thus will end the services of the most publicized private detectives in the city.
Day and night a guard of two, derbied and plainclothes, idle up and down in front of the mansion on the lookout for anyone who might be acting suspicious. The older home of the elder Rockefeller next door and its quaint red-bricked servant quarters will not be touched.

A year has passed, and despite the hoots swing music remains on the upbeat. When Benny Goodman, king of them all, profaned the sanctity of Carnegie Hall—as one critic moaned—with his swingfest concert on a recent Sunday evening, there was not much for the jeerers to say. Especially when hundreds were turned away. In the poll of Paramount theatre patrons, Benny Goodman and Shep Fields, not among the first ten a year ago are running straight and to show in the band field. Guy Lombardo, one of the first three leaders a year ago, is currently running second. Among the first flight to retain their popularity of a year ago are Eddy Duchin, Hal Kemp, Glen Gray, Fred Waring and Phil Spitalny. Those far back among the also rans and now up in the new voting include Horace Heidt, Tommy Dorsey and Bunny Bergman.

The Disney Influence: He was a drip-nosed nipper shivering in the doorway of a deserted block and holding forth a soiled extra. I had been to see "Snow White" the second time, and was all softened up. So I gave him practically all my loose change. That was a few nights ago. Last night I passed and he was there again. "Up to your old tricks?" I called. "So what?" he replied.

After 24 years of columning, I can think of no other job I would trade for mine. Outside of Garbo, it strikes me the most mediocre actresses wear dark glasses in public. Magnificent tribute to society's bor-dom and swell fodder for the communist boys: Elsa Maxwell's "I Live by My Wits," in Harper's Bazaar.
The late Chic Sale had signed up to do a syndicated column of home-spun philosophy a few weeks before his passing. Editors say it had much of the Abe Martin tang. I can never stand in front of a parrot's cage without a flinch that it will suddenly peck out an eye.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, February 12

Mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day stress very sudden and surprising developments, probably with the element of love, adventure or romance showing other more sordid matters out of the picture. Swift change, travel, impulsive moves, with some phases of the obscure, hidden or strategic,
may be expected.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a rather intriguing and surprising year, with benefit or failure according to the individual shrewdness and cautious handling of somewhat precitate and unusual situations. These have to do with adventure, romance, emotional crisis rather than business, and require circumspect as well as diplomatic manipulation.

A child born on this day may be shrewd, deep, diplomatic and also crafty and subtle. At the same time it may be open and above board, adventurous, romantic and may have sensational adventures or love affairs.

HEART

IT IS UPSETTING for one to be told he has heart disease. It has always been considered a serious ailment. Statistics continue to point to it as the first and chief cause of death.

Although this statement is accurate, it requires an explanation, because heart disease should not be feared as it is. As a matter of fact, most persons who become aware of having some form of heart disease may escape the dreaded consequences.

By taking the necessary precautions, they often outlive those who are believed to be free from this and other serious ailments. This is true for one reason, because an individual who regards himself as a perfect physical specimen too often subjects his body needlessly and foolishly to many dangers, strains and health hazards.

In the majority of cases, heart disease is serious only if neglected.
The sufferer from this complaint should place himself in the hands of a competent physician. The doctor will advise as to diet, medication and a number of precautions necessary for the relief of discomfort and the removal of danger.

What To Avoid

The things to be avoided by one who has heart disease, as well as all the rest of us, are negligence in diet, overwork, emotional strain, fear, overweight and failure to attend to acute infections. When these factors are given attention and a sane and sensible life is led, there is little to fear.

Unfortunately for society, very few live quietly and moderately.
They have a daily routine of work and play which seems to be the rule of our modern civilization. The constant "rush" ultimately damages the heart and leads to unnecessary trouble.

The danger of heart disease is especially great when it has been neglected from early childhood.
The victim of a serious form of heart disease may first consult with a doctor years after the onset of the disorder.

If medical attention is obtained at an early date, a great deal of unnecessary suffering and anxiety is sure to be avoided.
Do not confuse minor heart disorders of a functional nature with severe forms of heart disease. Your doctor will explain the difference.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. E. D. G. Q.—What is the cause of shaking palsy and how should this condition be treated?
The patient is about 72 years of age and has had this condition for about six years and gets more helpless all the time. Is it progressive and is there any cure?

A.—The cause is uncertain. While the condition cannot be definitely cured it can be relieved. Talk with the attending physician and follow his advice. Every patient presents an individual problem which should be treated accordingly.

AS BETWEEN LAWYERS

Driving along, said Mr. Herndon to Mr. Lincoln: "There are still some noble souls who would sacrifice to the betterment of their fellow creatures." "No," said Mr. Lincoln, "back of every good deed lies a selfish motive." Passing a farm they heard distracted squeals from a pig-pen. Lincoln got out, released a tangled foot, returned with muddy boots and dripping hat. "You prove my contention," said partner Herndon. "I prove my own," said Lincoln. "I don't want a sleepless night, hearing the squeals of a suffering hog I might have relieved and didn't." This is just another Lincoln story, apropos of his birthday tomorrow. It comes to you from The Macmillan Book Shop, where Lincoln Books and Cards are on sale.

In keeping with the policy of our store, we have searched the market to find the best line of frosted foods obtainable. We chose "Honor Brand" frosted foods because of its high quality, its large variety, its wonderful deep sea food line.

The fruits and vegetables are the cream of the crop. Vine ripe, individually selected and scientifically washed and cleaned. These foods are grown in the different states of our country where the finest crops are available. They are cleaned, frosted packed and stored within 30 to 60 minutes from the field. The vegetables are packed loose, in pound and one-half pound packs, only the amount required for each meal need be removed from the carton, the balance placed in the refrigerator for future use. These fruits and vegetables are positively fresh. There are no preservatives of any kind added. They are uncooked. The intense frosting process destroys all germs. Proving Her Faith

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, who police said drenched her clothing with gasoline and set it afire "to prove her faith," died yesterday.

Prisoner Enjoys One Thought; He'll Re Released Soon

LISBON, Feb. 11.—The logical contender for the mantle of the Biblical Job sits today in the county jail wondering how things can possibly get any worse.
His name is Herbert Dobertz; his address, St. Louis, Mo. Dobertz made the public prints January 21 when a P. U. C. O. agent arrested him for carrying a passenger on his truck. Fined $25 and costs Dobertz confessed an inability to meet the requirements and was locked up in the county jail.
Dobertz' passenger was his wife who, after a stay in the village, made her way back to her home. The truck was impounded on a local parking lot, awaiting the driver's release. Dobertz settled down in jail, more or less reconciled to serving out his fine at the rate of $1.50 a day.
The forepart of this week Ed Struley, a friend of Dobertz, appeared at the jail. Struley also drives a truck. When he reached Lisbon, mechanical trouble developed and, learning of Dobertz' plight, he asked and received permission to transfer his load to his friend's conveyance. When this was accomplished Struley started for Pittsburgh.
On the way back the driver lost control and the truck crashed into a house not far from the Smoky City. From the standpoint of damage the encounter was a draw. The truck was demolished and the house knocked off its foundation. Then, to cap the climax, a finance company agent repossessed the machine left in Lisbon.
One ray of sunshine permeates the gloom surrounding Dobertz. Tomorrow his debt to the State of Ohio will be paid in full.

"Women In Love" by May Christie

SYNOPSIS
The loss of the family fortune did not phase Ann Delafield, just nineteen and the youngest of three daughters. Now that her banker father had failed and was only earning $60 a week in the reorganized company, she was not going to sit idly by, but would get a position. Her sister, Bernice and Claire, twenty-one and twenty-two, respectively, just laughed. And Mother Delafield always got a convulsive heart attack when anything went wrong. Freddy Branning, an irresponsible artist and Bernice's heart-throb, arrives with news of the opening of a new supper-club called "The Laughing Pig." "Get me a job there," Bernice pleaded. "Couldn't I be a barmaid or something?" So Bernice goes off to the club with Freddy. Claire, a bridge fiend says any money she earns will come from that source. Her present bridge partner is Captain de Freyn, a questionable character though persona grata on Park Avenue. With a letter of introduction from Thomas P. Barclay, one of the owners of Barclay & Weiss, Ann buoyantly goes into that department store in search of work. She overhears an argument between a sales-girl and a customer.

CHAPTER IV
Ann stepped forward, smiling. "Let me have a look at it." Directly behind her, though she did not know it, was a tall, good-looking man in striped trousers and immaculate morning coat. He heard Ann say to the customer, after examining the goods: "Pardon me, but you're mistaken in comparing this to the rayon that you purchased uptown. A very warm rayon, but this silk is of excellent quality. The kind of silk that isn't washable is the type that is heavily weighted and not a pure dye, but this kind launders beautifully." To the salesgirl she added, confidentially: "I know, because I've studied silk quite a bit." Her air of assurance, her definiteness, plus her appearance of the "upper strata" had its effect. Turning brightly to the customer, she told her: "This is equivalent to the first-class lingerie silk-crepes from the textile mills in Lyons, France. I spent a week there once with a school chum when I was studying in Paris. Her father's one of the most important silk manufacturers in the world. He took me round his mills and explained all the differences in quality to me. I assure you this silk is excellent." The tall, good-looking man corroborated her opinion. The customer was convinced. She followed the salesgirl down the counter to the wrapping department. Looking at Ann with handsome dark eyes that seemed to bore right through her, the man said: "Thank you, it isn't usual to find among customers the cool competence of the young woman executive." She blushed, and hated herself for blushing. She managed to stammer out: "But that's exactly what I would like to be!" There was a pause. The blood humming in her ears, mingling with the buzz of the store that was as busy as a beehive. She thought, "He's somebody of importance." His look was so magnetic, so disturbing, that she forgot all about the letter of introduction in her handbag. She said quite humbly: "I want a job if you will give me one." He asked her to go with him to his office, which was on the sixth floor. He was silent in the elevator. She studied his profile surreptitiously. Determination in his chin. Arrogance in his nose. Sensitiveness in his well-cut mouth. Intelligence in his fine forehead. Strength in every line of him. She decided he was about thirty, and a complete, overwhelming contrast to the lik of Captain de Freyn and Freddy. A real man, in fact. Two secretaries sat in his outer office. The inner room was small and rather bare. He motioned Ann to sit in a chair directly opposite his desk, with light from a very tall window falling full upon her. His handsome eyes scrutinized her, as if now somewhat dubious, or critical. After a brief silence, he rapped out: "What qualifications have you to offer?" Under that quizzical gaze she thought: "He was kidding me when he spoke of my cool competence!" She said: "I've the customers' point of view. I'm sure I know what women like. I've been around. I've been abroad. You'd find I have initiative—and a style sense." "Indeed? Have you ever worked before?" "Oh no. Except..."—she stammered—"at the Junior League. I mean I've had selling experience at the charity bazaars—and selling programs at benefits—and chances, raffles at balls last winter, and this summer at Bar Harbor at charity fete."

"Em. How old are you, Miss—?" "Ann Delafield. I'm nineteen." "I take it you're completely unaware that work in a big organization such as this is vastly different from the amusements you have just referred to? As a matter of fact, I'm rather averse to engaging girls of your—background." "But I have to work. We've lost our money. Don't you see I—?" He said coolly: "This is not a philanthropic institution." "But you need new blood," she said.

work. Give me a chance," she pleaded. "At what?" "As a stylist," she said desperately. "Couldn't he see she was well-dressed? That the very hat she wore, forecast the trend in millinery of ultra design?" He smiled. Not agreeably. "You fail to realize that a department store like this has too big an investment at stake to experiment with amateurs in its style bureau, Miss Delafield. Moreover, even if you did give satisfaction, there would be no permanent spot for you there, since you would be bound to run out of ideas sooner or later." "Then as a salesgirl," she cried out, "Let me learn from the ground up." His smile grew slightly warmer. "That's better." "Can I start now?" Dark blue eyes were fixed on magnetic brown ones. "Hold on. There are other things a girl of your caliber can do besides selling, though whatever you do, I'm all for direct contact with the customers on the floor. It's a grand study in psychology. One learns tact, and the controlling of one's temper. It de-centers and deflates one's ego, Miss Delafield. You learn to suppress your personality and to take orders. One of the most important things for a beginner." He paused tapping his desk with a pencil. "I shall start you off, I think, as a 'comparison shopper.' Your salary will be eighteen dollars a week for a beginning. It's up to you to make good."

"What is a 'comparison shopper,' please?"

"Someone who looks around the other stores and brings back the newest ideas to us. One who compares quality, style and price of our goods against those of our competitors. When a thing seems attractive to you purchase it and bring it to me or to the buyer of that particular department." He pressed the buzzer on his desk and a secretary appeared. "To the latter he said: 'Will you take down the name and address of Miss Delafield who is our new comparison shopper, and send a memo to the Personnel Department to that effect?' He turned to Ann. "What reference can you give us, Miss Delafield? It's a question of form, you understand." Now was the time to produce her letter of introduction. She took it from her handbag. "This is from Mr. Tom Barclay. I was to give it to the merchandise-manager." "I'm the merchandise-manager," Paul Bradley. I'm glad I engaged you without the letter, because I prefer to use hunches. I'm rather good at hunches." He scanned the letter, then rose, as did Ann too. He smiled kindly at her. Unexpectedly he shook her by the hand. A warm current flowed from the point of contact through her whole being, so that suddenly she felt vitalized from top to toe. (To Be Continued)

The senate meanwhile approved and sent to the house a $600,000 appropriation to pay the state's share of Works Progress Adminisand passed a house-approved bill aimed at "rustlers." It would give the state highway patrol power to

The senate also voted to extend until June 30, 1938, the Gallagher, finance their obligations by reoracts, permitting them to issue 30-

Florence Rice and Robert Young, who have been a good romantic team in several previous pictures, are teamed again in "Paradise for Three", a clever comedy showing tonight and Saturday at the State.

Frank Morgan, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen and Henry Hull have supporting roles.

Wins Prize

Tobler (Frank Morgan), a wealthy German capitalist, is one of the winners in a competition under the name of Schulse, the reward being a ten-day holiday at a resort hotel at Bruckeuren in the Alps.

Yielding to a whim to associate with the human species as one of the masses rather than as a millionaire, Tobler, poorly dressed, arrives at the fashionable hotel. He has insisted on his butler, Johann (Reginald Owen), being a guest at the same time, the latter posing as a wealthy ship owner. The winner of the competition's first prize, Hagedorn (Robert Young), is a poor young doctor of philosophy who, since his graduation from the university, has been unable to secure any sort of position.

The hotel management, warned over the telephone by Tobler's daughter (Florence Rice) to cater to a man who appears poor but who is really a masquerading millionaire, mistakes Hagedorn for this personage and lavishes him with attentions, while Tobler is relegated to a servant's room in the attic and disdainfully treated.

Enjoy Holiday

These three men thoroughly enjoy their bizarre holiday, playing around together, much to the amazement of the other fashionable guests.
Claiming to be a friend of the eminent Tobler, the disguised butler promises to use his influence with the millionaire to secure Hagedorn a position in one of the Tobler concerns.

When Tobler's pretty daughter arrives at the hotel to rescue her father from the indignities the faithful butler reports are being inflicted on his master, not knowing the identity of the millionaire becomes engaged to the girl. An insupportable insult from the marriage agent causes Tobler to leave the hotel and the rest of the party promptly leave also. Back in Berlin, Hagedorn not only gets the promised position in the Tobler firm but learns the identity of his fiance and her father.

NEW LEADER COMES TO FRONT IN BOWLING MEET

Manufacturers Drop To 2nd As Masonic Team Cops Lead In Tourney Five-Man Event

Masons' Class A Five Rolls Consistently To Take Over First Place In Bowling Tournament; Mullins Foremen "B" In Third Place

A new leader forged to the front in the five-man event of the annual City Handicap Bowling tournament last night as the Masons of the Class A National league clicked off a 2877 total at the Grate Recreation alleys to better the former high by 10 pins.

The Masons rolled consistently but not sensationally in climbing into the top money position. They chalked up scores of 962, 958 and 957 including a 95-pin handicap in each game.

Paul (Judy) Myers and John Burns turned in the high scores for the Masonic leggers, Myers collecting 547 pins and Burns hitting 536 after getting off to a poor start.

In taking over first place, the Masons shoved Mullins Manufacturers down to second position. The Manufacturers set the pace Wednesday night when they rolled 2867.

Third place in the five-man standing also changed hands as the Mullins Foremen team of the Class B American league banged out 2816 to take the bowling spot away from the Mullins Foremen's team of the Class A National league which turned in a 2795 score during Wednesday's firing.

The Foremen's "B" squad rolled games of 966, 957 and 953 in moving into third place. Their handicap for the three games was 348 pins.

Burns' Shoes of the National top pulled into fourth place by hitting 2808 on games of 943, 882 and 983. Charlie Wernet totaled 883 on games of 201, 175 and 207 to lead the Shoemen, who received 132 free pins in three games.

The Salem News Class A team, the tournament's lowest handicap outfit, was unable to break in among the leaders, rolling 2729. Other scores were: Althouse Motors, 2734; Masons "B", 2726; Young Democrats, 2698; Flooding & Reynard Drugs, 2699; Forgotten Five, 2692; Electric Furnace Federals, 2620; Grate Recreation, 2614 and Mullins Diet Room, 2681.

The five-man competition will close with 12 teams taking to the alleys for final blasts tonight. Doubles and singles events will get under way next Monday night.

Heading tonight's list of contestants is the Ohio Edison team of the American league, which won the five-man championship last year. Also rolling will be the Crescent Machine Shop of Lee-on, Reich's Sports, Citizens' Ice & Coal, Merit Shoes, Bliss Pattern Shop, Smith's Creamery, Stillelicious Chocolate Milks, People's Lumber, Sinclair's, Ohio Edison Electric Shop and Loudon's V-8's of Hanoverton.

DODGERS SPANK COLUMBIANS IN FLOOR CONTEST

Althouse Quintet Moves Into Sole Possession of League Lead

Turning in one of their best performances of the season, the Althouse Dodgers trampled the Columbians, 29 to 19, at the Memorial building court last night to take over sole possession of first place in the Class A City Basketball league.

Formerly tied with the Columbians for first place, the Dodgers broke the deadlock by gaining a comfortable lead in the first half and supporting this advantage throughout the second half.

The Althouse quintet pulled to the front in the opening period, 8 to 6, and held the lead from then on in. At halftime, the Dodgers were out in front, 11 to 7, while at the end of the third quarter they led, 17 to 13.

In the final period, Althouse's scored 12 points while holding the Columbians to six.

Al Catlos, Bob Jeffries and Sammy Drakulich shared honors in the Dodgers' victory, Catlos scoring nine points, Jeffries eight and Drakulich six.

Three Class B league games were played last night with Reich's Trojans, the Trades Class and Saxons emerging on top in these contests.

Whit's Garage holds the lead in the Class B circuit with four wins. Reich's Trojans chalked up their fourth win in five second half games by defeating the Krauss Heels, 32 to 27.

The Trojans led throughout the contest, but were forced to stave off the Heels last-quarter rally to win.

A field goal by Al Juhn in the last 10 seconds of play gave the Trades Class a 22 to 20 victory over the Columbian "B" team.

The game was close throughout the four periods although the Trades Class held the edge at halftime and the end of the third frame. At the intermission, the Tradesmen led 12 to 10.

Piling up a seven-point lead in the first half, the Saxons coasted to a 24 to 23 victory over Demings. The Pumpmakers staged a rally in the last half, but their spirit fell short.
